2. Why does the organisation process personal data?

AAT needs to process data to take steps at your request prior to entering into a contract with you. It also needs to process your data to enter into a contract with you.

In some cases, AAT needs to process data to ensure that it complies with its legal obligations eg. safer recruitment guidelines, eligibility to work in the UK before the successful candidate commences employment.

AAT has a legitimate interest in processing personal data during the recruitment process and for keeping records of the process. Processing data from job applicants allows AAT to manage the recruitment process, assess and confirm a candidate's suitability for employment and decide to whom to offer a job. AAT may also need to process data from job applicants to respond to and defend against legal claims.

Where AAT relies on legitimate interests as a reason for processing data, it has considered whether or not those interests are overridden by the rights and freedoms of employees or workers and has concluded that they are not.

AAT processes health information if it needs to make reasonable adjustments to the recruitment process for candidates who have a disability. This is to carry out its obligations and exercise specific rights in relation to employment.

AAT processes other special categories of data such as information about ethnic origin, sexual orientation, health or religion or belief. This is to monitor equal opportunities.

AAT is obliged to seek information about criminal convictions and offences in line with safer recruitment guidelines. Where AAT seeks this information, it does so because it is necessary for it to carry out its obligations and exercise specific rights in relation to employment.

If your application is unsuccessful, AAT may keep your personal data on file in case there are future employment opportunities for which you may be suited. AAT will ask for your consent before it keeps your data for this purpose and you are free to withdraw your consent at any time.

3. Who has access to data?

Your information will be shared internally for the purposes of the recruitment exercise. This includes members of the administration team responsible for recruitment and interviewers involved in the recruitment process.

AAT will not share your data with third parties unless your application is successful and it makes you an offer of employment. AAT will then share your data with employment background check providers to obtain necessary background checks and the Disclosure and Barring Service to obtain necessary criminal records checks.

AAT will not transfer your data outside the European Economic Area.

4. How does AAT protect data?

AAT takes the security of your data seriously. It has internal policies and controls in place to ensure that your data is not lost, accidentally destroyed, misused or disclosed and is not accessed except by AAT employees in the proper performance of their duties. Appropriate restriction levels are in place in management information systems where your data may be held.

5. For how long does AAT keep data?

If your application for employment is unsuccessful, the organisation will hold your data on file for a period of six months after the end of the relevant recruitment process. If you agree to allow AAT to keep your personal data on file, it will hold your data for a further one year for consideration for future employment opportunities. At the end of that period, or if you withdraw your consent, your data is deleted or destroyed.

If your application for employment is successful, personal data gathered during the recruitment process will be transferred to your personnel file and retained during your employment. The periods for which your data will be held will be provided to you in a new privacy notice.
